As Chairman of International Practice Group, I wish to congratulate Thuis Partners on their 50 years in business. A remarkable milestone.

My firm first met Thuis Partners in 1999 as we joined International Practice Group (“IPG”), when IPG was under a previous name of EU-LEX International Group. IPG is an association of lawyers, accountants and tax advisors, who came together to promote business contacts around the world and to better serve our clients.

I, myself, had the pleasure to first meet Ben Meijs in 2002 when I first attended an IPG conference in New York. I was struck by the warm and generous welcome Ben gave me and my colleagues. A sure sign of things to come.

The presence of firms such as Thuis Partners in the association, plus the company of their excellent lawyers at our conferences, has added greatly to the collegiate atmosphere and ethos of the group. Not only can we rely on our fellow members being superb professional advisors to our clients, we have built strong and lasting friendships. This is noticed by our clients when we work together, ensuring the clients feel that they are not being advised by strangers. This makes such collaboration not only a pleasure, but helps our clients with a more productive outcome.

I hope that we have many more years working with Thuis Partners and I am sure I have the endorsement of all members of IPG when I raise a toast to the success of Thuis Partners and wish them a success for their next 50 years.
